

The Facts About H.R. 3708, The Primary Care Enhancement Act - Source: the Bipartisan Joint Committee on Taxation (JCT):

- “Under the proposal, a direct primary care service arrangement will not be treated as a health plan that will make an individual ineligible to contribute to an HSA.”
- “Fees paid for any direct primary care service arrangement will be treated as medical expenses (and not the payment of insurance).”
- “The sole compensation for such care (in a DPC arrangement) is a fixed periodic fee... for primary care services provided by primary care practitioners.”

Today, dated IRS rules say 23 million Americans with high deductible health plans (HDHPs) are not eligible for Direct Primary Care (DPC) if they fund an HSA. Section 223 (c) of the Internal Revenue Code (IRC) says to be eligible to fund an HSA, an individual must be covered by an HDHP and no other health plan or coverage for benefits in an HDHP (like primary care). This effectively disqualifies one third of the Americans covered by their employers, who currently have these high deductible plans from getting great primary care from a doctor of their choice with a DPC arrangement that establishes a personal relationship a patient and doctor that improves care.

H.R. 3708 creates an exception to the existing IRS definition of a DPC agreement a health plan applicable for affordable DPC arrangements that cost less than $150 per month and do not bundle the following into a DPC agreement:

- (1) procedures that require the use of general anesthesia,
- (2) prescription drugs other than vaccines, and
- (3) laboratory services not typically administered in an ambulatory primary care setting.

These definitions only apply to a limited section of the tax code pertaining to HSA eligibility, which is the one and only section prohibiting DPC arrangements for patients who fund their HSA accounts.

Does the Bill treat DPC as Insurance? Absolutely not. It says in black letters that a DPC arrangement “shall not be treated as a health plan” and treats fees for DPC arrangements as medical expenses, not insurance. Any thoughts that this creates a new definition as insurance is pure fiction.

Why the limitations on fees? The JCT says these new triple-tax-preferred benefits cost roughly $1.8 billion in lost tax revenue. As a compromise to keep the cost down, the Ways and Means Committee added reasonable limits to this special exception in the tax code. These are common compromises in legislation. These limits are intended to allow for reasonable, affordable fees for patients. They are indexed for inflation annually and are double the current median monthly fee for a DPC agreement. The limitations are only applied to individuals with HSAs. And it’s important to note that under current law there is a cap on the amount DPC physicians can charge patients who use HSAs. That cap is $0.

Will the prescription drug limitation prohibit doctors from offering discounted drugs to patients? No. The bill simply says fees for the DPC agreements can’t include pharmaceuticals. DPC arrangements typically don’t do this. This bill doesn’t prohibit physicians from dispensing—or even being paid to dispense drugs. There are few if any practices doing this today and some states such as Texas don’t allow physicians to dispense at all. While the optics of this provision are not ideal as Congress seeks policies to lower prescription drug prices, this provision has no practical impact on DPC practices today.

Why Does the Bill Apply only to Primary Care? Today there aren’t major specialties outside of primary care where it’s practical to have a monthly fee agreement, which is the key issue in the tax code. All versions of the bill since its inception have narrowly defined these clarifications to primary care services.

DPC is a good, simple, and affordable Idea. With DPC you or your employer pays for a personal relationship with a primary care doctor at an affordable rate. We want to make sure there are no obstacles in the tax code and other parts of the law that prevent this from being an important choice for people to improve their healthcare.
